The Confidence-Man
 His Masquerade
 by Herman Melville

Evoking Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, this is a story of interlocking tales from a group of steamboat passengers traveling down the Mississippi toward New Orleans aboard the Fidèle. One man sneaks aboard ship to test the so-called confidence of the passengers, and everyone is forced to confront that in which he places his trust before journey's end. Mixing his trademark satirical style with allegory and metaphysical treatise, Melville's The Confidence Man is a precursor to the twentieth-century literary preoccupations with nihilism, existentialism, and absurdism.

The Saga of an American Family
By Alex Haley
Introduction by Michael Eric Dyson
Read by Avery Brooks

When Alex Haley was growing up in Tennessee, his grandmother used to tell him stories about their family, stories that went way back to a man she called "the African" who was taken aboard a slave ship bound for Colonial America. As an adult, Alex spent twelve years searching for documentation that might authenticate what his grandmother told him. In an astonishing feat of genealogical detective work, he discovered the name of "the African"—Kunta Kinte—as well as the exact location of the village from where he was abducted in 1767. Roots is based on the facts of Alex's ancestry, and the six generations of people who descended from Kunta Kinte.
